3. Amplify and share the demands of Palestinian trade unions, as outlined in the Call to Action statement.

- Use what is appropriate to your situation to open conversations about Palestine in your workplace. Raise awareness, provide education and materials to co-workers. Identify allies, organise workplace gatherings and encourage others to do so. Display materials and share photographs.
- Give members specific actions to take, including demanding an end to Scotland's complicity in Energy Apartheid. This includes encouraging your union to take a position of opposition to the proposed Rosebank oil field.
- Encourage co-workers to join a union if they are not already members.
- Encourage discussion of the Palestinian trade union call and build support for motions in your branch and across your union. If your branch meets that week, put forward motions. If your next meeting is later, use the week to develop motions, gather support and prepare to submit to the branch / union executive as appropriate. Work with other branches to build wider support and get motions passed and submitted to upcoming union conferences. Motions should include clear actions and cover for example Drop CAF & support for rail unions, Energy Apartheid, EPP, EIP and Zionism is Racism, linking to issues in your own workplace where possible.
- Identify complicity in your workplace and challenge it, including by representatives raising it as an industrial issue with local management.

- Encourage members and co-workers to write to the Transport Minister about the shortlisting of CAF, using the Action Network letter. The PDF version can be emailed to all contacts, flyers distributed in the workplace and posters displayed on union noticeboards.

- Encourage members in the Strathclyde area to send divestment letters using the Action Network letter.
- Encourage your union to join the ten who have written to the UK government calling on them to reject the Rosebank oil field, which in addition to the environmental damage, would contribute to human rights abuses in Palestine.
- Encourage representatives and members to support the Stop Rosebank campaign, including by encouraging members to send the Action Network letter.
